

UNIDROIT INTERNATIONAL PROGRAM for LAW and DEVELOPMENT (Summer School 2023)

The International Institute for the Unification of Private Law (UNIDROIT) is an independent, intergovernmental organisation based in Rome that was established in 1926. Its purpose is to study needs and methods for modernising, harmonising, and coordinating private and in particular commercial law between States and groups of States and to formulate uniform law instruments, principles and rules to achieve these goals.

UNIDROIT's products not only contribute to bring legal cultures closer together and to overcome legal barriers, but also to the achievement of sustainable development goals and active contribution to international governance. Its 63 Member States are drawn from the five continents and represent a variety of different legal, economic, and political systems, as well as different cultural backgrounds.

Development policies often focus exclusively on physical and technological infrastructures or human capital, and tend to underestimate the instrumentality of the legal framework supporting the private sector in the pursuit of growth objectives in the broader context of the global economy and sustainable development.

Investing time and resources in achieving sound legal frameworks is key in order to achieve many of the 17 Sustainable Development Goals of the 2030 Agenda and the 20 goals of the 2063 Agenda for Africa. This includes the implementation of existing international legal instruments identified as best practices, such as international conventions, model laws or contractual instruments, as well as legal guides.

The UNIDROIT International Program for Law and Development (formerly International Summer School) is the latest of a variety of knowledge sharing and dissemination activities of the UNIDROIT Academy, a line of work of one of the oldest transnational law institutions featuring consolidated partnerships with leading universities, specialised UNIDROIT Chairs, a renowned scholarship programme (which also offers secondments, scholarships and internships) and a worldwide library network.
